

CANADIAN SOCIAL WORK REVIEW EDITORIAL BOARD

Three vacant positions need to be filled on the Editorial Board of the Canadian Social Work Review – Revue canadienne de service social (CSWR-RCSS), for a term starting in June 2020. Two positions are for the Anglophone committee and one for the Francophone committee.

The CSWR Editorial Board consists of eight members who are chosen from across Canada, taking into account regional and gender representation, and, to a lesser extent, representation from different fields of interest in social work. The Editorial Board also strives to reflect the cultural profile of our profession. The normal term of office is three years, but it is common for members to serve two terms to ensure a smooth transition during the regular turnover of members of the Editorial Board.

Prior publishing experience and experience in reviewing articles are important. Applicants must be members of the Canadian Association for Social Work Education – Association Canadienne pour la formation en travail social (CASWE-ACFTS) and also be affiliated with a Canadian school of social work. According to CASWE-ACFTS policy, individuals already serving on the Association's Board of Directors, or the Commission on Accreditation, cannot be considered.

The Editorial Board selects articles and sets policy for the journal, which is published twice per year. Members usually meet face-to-face twice per year and hold conference calls as required to deal with matters of editorial policy and management of the journal. Most work is done via email.

Applicants interested in this volunteer role are requested to submit a letter of interest and curriculum vitae by email to Marie-Christine Bois, Managing Editor, at cswr-rcss@caswe-acfts.ca, no later than May 22, 2020.
